18-20 SUFFOLK PARADE

Our restaurant occupies the site of the former St James's Lodge, where a surgeon called Charles Salt was in residence. In 1922 all of the properties at 18-21 Suffolk Parade were demolished and replaced with the Daffodil Picture House. This was Cheltenham's first purpose-built cinema, with 750 seats including 'kissing seats'... double seats at the end of each aisle designed for courting couples!

The first film to be shown at the cinema was 'Thunderclap', a silent film, starring J. Barney Sherry, Violet Mersereau, Paul Willis and Mary Carr.

In 2008 the cinema was refurbished by Laurence Llewellyn Bowen and reopened as The Daffodil restaurant. Since then it has played host to Prince William and been featured in scenes from the BBC's Sherlock Holmes starring Benedict Cumberbatch.

The Daffodil, which recently started the next chapter in its history (being purchased in March 2016), remains one of the country's finest surviving examples of original Art Deco cinema and is still as vibrant and stylish as when it opened nearly a century ago.
